Cinematographer & Director | Mexico City, Mexico

Narrative Bio

I am a Mexican director and cinematographer. I work with light as an emotional language, seeking authentic gestures, living atmospheres, and moments in which the everyday takes on a poetic dimension. My vision is rooted in one central idea: the epic within the intimate.

My work spans fiction, narrative fashion films, documentaries, music videos, live music sessions, photography, and commercial projects. I explore how movement, texture, presence, and space can give shape to emotion. I am drawn to a camera that accompanies those in front of it and to staging that makes room for the unexpected.

In 2026, I directed and photographed Inner Light, a narrative fashion film exploring transformation through light, the body, and movement. The film received its first international official selection at the 11th Seattle International Fashion Film Festival (2026), where it is scheduled to screen. It remains under consideration at Alchemy Film and Moving Image Festival, Hong Kong International Film Festival, Cyprus Fashion Film Festival, Busan International Short Film Festival, and Short Shorts Film Festival & Asia.

As a director of photography, I have worked on A Marte (2025), Fuego terciopelo (2026), and Paco de María’s music video Like a Prayer (2026). A Marte has received selections and awards at international film festivals. My experience also includes work for Le Labo Fragrances × Ryokan México, DBYD Eyewear × Más Visión, and audiovisual productions for Museo Franz Mayer.

I hold a degree in Film and Television from CENTRO and pursued graduate studies in Film at Universidad Iberoamericana. I am the director of photography of Baby Scrollers, a feature documentary in development whose project dossier was submitted to PROCINE.

I collaborate with artists across film, music, fashion, performance, and the visual arts. I seek to understand the emotion at the heart of each project and, together with the team, translate it into images that stay with the viewer.
